Jorgensen Takes Oath of Office at In-District Inauguration

MADISON – Following Inauguration Day ceremonies at the Capitol, State Representative Andy Jorgensen (D-Milton) Tuesday held a swearing-in event in the Edgerton City Council Chambers.

"The pomp and circumstance of the Capitol ceremony is something to see, but it's far more meaningful for me to take the Oath of Office before the folks who've elected me to serve," said Jorgensen. "My promise to them is that, each and every day, I'll be ready to listen and to work hard to represent our shared values: a stronger economy, world-class public education, and a better future for us all."

Jorgensen especially thanked Wisconsin State Supreme Court Chief Justice Shirley Abrahamson for officiating the in-district Inauguration, and for the many local elected officials who braved the weather to attend.

"I appreciate the support of my friends and neighbors in the 43rd Assembly District, and their input," said Jorgensen. "That's why I'll continue to hold listening sessions in the communities I serve each month, and why my door in the Capitol is always open."

On Wednesday, Jorgensen was back in Madison for an Assembly floor session focused on changing the rules under which the lawmakers operate their business. As Caucus Chair, Jorgensen will participate in ongoing negotiations with Republican leaders about the rules. This session, he will also serve as the ranking Democrat on the Committees on Small Business Development and Public Benefit Reform, and sit on the Committees on Agriculture, Colleges and Universities, Rules, and Assembly Organization.

"The session ahead will be a busy one, and that's just the way I like it," said Jorgensen. "No matter what's happening in Madison, though, folks can count on me to be just a call or email away. Your concerns are my first concern."
